The brooding Gamkaberg, together with the equally mysterious Rooiberg, appear to have been laid down as one over the lowlands of the Little Karoo. The Gamka is a range in isolation, lurching suddenly out of the landscape, a symbol of jealously guarded tranquillity. Its name is derived from the Khoisan "gami", meaning lion – the place was once the hunting grounds of the now extinct Cape Lion. Although it was too late for the lion, Gamkaberg Nature Reserve has played a critical role in conserving a small, remnant herd of endangered Cape mountain zebra. The herd numbered just five in 1974, but due to dedicated conservation efforts, herd numbers have increased, and Gamkaberg remains a haven for these rare creatures.

The reserve offers unbounded challenges to delight the adventurous – from the stunning trad rock climbing at Tierkloof, to the hiking and 4x4 trails through rugged, pristine wilderness. For those who prefer a more relaxed pace, CapeNature offers a range of comfortable accommodation, as well as gentle hikes and rambles.

FROM CALITZDORP: Take the Andries Pretorius turn off in a southerly direction and keep going. This will turn into the Old Cement Road (road has now been tarred) and 24 km out of Calitzdorp you will pass Amber Lagoon Retreat indicated with a big sign on the left hand side. Just 200m after Amber Lagoon Retreat, look out for the Andrieskraal/ Rietfontein sign which is posted on the right hand side of the road opposite the turn off. Don't turn left at this point, 200m later is the Gamkaberg turn off to the right, now also indicated with the Zebra chevron. Yellow reflective tape stripes have been pasted on the Old Gamkaberg sign, also visible at night. Follow the dirt road for another 5,9km to the Info Centre.

FROM OUDTSHOORN: Take the R62 towards Calitzdorp. Then 10.3 km out of Oudtshoorn turn left at the Gamkaberg/ Warmbad turn off onto the Old Cement Road. Approximately 18 km later cross a bridge with white concrete railings. The Gamkaberg turn off is 400m further to the left, now also indicated with the Zebra chevron. Yellow reflective tape stripes have been pasted on the Old Gamkaberg sign, also visible at night. Follow the dirt road for another 5,9km to the Info Centre.
